33rd Congress of the International Network of Productive Learning Schools and Projects
(INEPS)

“Opening Doors – From School To Vocational Life”

How Productive Learning improves career prospects

18th to 22nd May 2026

Kiel, Schleswig-Holstein/Germany

What is the focus of the conference?

The 33rd INEPS-Congress takes place in Spring 2026 in the north of Germany. It will focus on a crucial period in the life of each student: when obligatory secondary education comes to an end and students have to make decisions with high impact on their lives.

Successful transitions following lower secondary education are key topics of education in European countries and world-wide due to its urgency: Deficits and failure in this process cause risks for the wellbeing of the individual as well as the society as a whole, relying on the participation and the qualification of its members. Early school leaving and a lack of skilled personnel are “two sides of this coin”. Subsequently vocational orientation contributes to a wide spectrum of future social needs – from health and integration via social coherence to economic development.

To address important aspects of this process, this conference will focus on:

- How can school help young people to come to well reflected and sustainable decisions about their future education and training?
- How can secondary education help the adolescents to enter the world of work with confidence, self-assurance and well prepared?
- What strengthens young people to successfully manage the transition from school to vocational training?
- Which partners have to be involved and how do they cooperate successfully?
- And how does Productive Learning pursue all these targets?

Why is the conference relevant and why should you consider your participation?

Take advantage of the opportunity to get insights into the curricular and methodological integration of Productive Learning in Schleswig-Holstein:

- Three days of learning at self-chosen practice places and two days of learning in school,
- curricular integration of all subjects (in practice and learning fields in school),
- communication group and individual counseling as constant elements of the educational process.

The two-year approach in class 8/9 leads to regular school leaving certificates and offers transmissibility for all kinds of upper secondary education. Within the last years almost 90 % of the participants, many of them considered as “at risk of dropping out” – reached their certification and more than 60 % continued in vocational training immediately.

It's a unique chance to get to know the practice of Productive Learning in Germany developed through decades as well as international practice and experience in the INEPS!

Annex: What is Productive Learning?

Productive Learning is an educational approach developed by the Institute for Productive Learning in Europe (IPLE) and the International Network of Productive Learning Projects and Schools (INEPS). It was inspired by City-As-School New York, a pioneer since 1972 in curricular integration of “out of school” resources for formal education and long standing member of INEPS.

Today more than 100 schools in Germany and INEPS partners in more than 10 countries are using Productive Learning

- to individualize educational offers according to the needs of the students,
- to connect school based learning and real-life experience to improve education and vocational orientation,
- to facilitate the transition from school to vocational training and further studies for all students, also the ones considered “at risk” of dropping out.
